Transformation in Action Poster
Institute on Community Transformation

Purpose

This poster is designed to introduce community leaders to the Truth, Racial Healing, and Transformation (TRHT) framework and the ways in which Truth, Racial Healing, and Transformation (TRHT), and Truth Community Healing, and Transformation (TCHT) Campus Centers are advancing the pillars of the framework on campus and local communities. TRHT, TCHT and the TRHT Framework is a comprehensive effort to heal division and bring systemic equality to all communities. If we are to thrive, then we need to recognize the interdependent nature of humanity.

This poster also serves as a conversation and understanding of the deep and legacy of campus centers across the country, an opportunity to learn from campus center colleagues how they move the pillars and shift systems in their own community.

Use this template to create a visually compelling, informative display about your campus center and community that sparks conversation and invites engagement.

It doesn't have to be all success stories. There are lessons to learn even when the campus action plans don't unfold the way it was originally intended. What are the activities on your campus that fall under Narrative Change and Healing and Relationship Building? How have those activities led to change in Economy, Separation, and Law (Campus Policy)? What is the context for the community you serve and who are the community partners you engage with locally that aid in this effort?

Framework Overview (Include These Key Elements)

Most campus center work lives and breathes in the Narrative Change and the Healing and Relationship Building pillars. Use this space to include narrative about your center's activities. The benefit of:

A. Narrative Change

- Highlight how stories, media, and cultural messages shape beliefs about race.
- Use visuals or quotes that challenge harmful narratives and uplift inclusive ones.

B. Racial Healing /Healing & Relationship Building

- Emphasize the importance of empathy, connection, and dialogue.
- Include examples of healing circles, community conversations, or restorative practices.

C. Separation

- Illustrate how segregation—physical, social, or institutional—has shaped communities.
- Use maps, timelines, or before/after visuals.

D. Law

- Show how laws and policies have contributed to inequity.
- Add brief examples of policy change or campus reform efforts.

E. Economy

- Explain how economic systems have advantaged some groups while disadvantaging others.
- Use charts or infographics to make disparities and solutions clear.

Final Checklist Before You Print

- Clear, readable text
- High-resolution images (300 dpi recommended)

Transporting Your Poster During a Flight

If Your Poster Is Rolled

- Use a sturdy poster tube with end caps.
- Choose a hard-shell tube for maximum protection.
- Label the tube with your name and contact info.
- Carry it on the plane—most airlines allow poster tubes as a personal item or carry-on.

General Travel Tips

- Avoid folding your poster—creases are nearly impossible to remove.
- Bring a small repair kit: double-sided tape, glue dots, and extra pins.
- Keep a digital copy on hand in case you need to reprint quickly.
