

2025-26 ANNUAL REPORT

A Message from the President

Lynn Pasquerella
President, AAC&U

This annual report tells the story of a year unlike any other in the history of the American Association of Colleges and Universities. It was a year marked by unprecedented challenges to higher education, profound uncertainty across our institutions, and difficult questions about the future of American democracy itself. Yet it was also a year that demonstrated the resilience of our members, the strength of our shared mission, and the enduring importance of liberal education as a public good.

Throughout our history, AAC&U has championed the idea that higher education exists not simply to prepare students for careers, but to prepare them for lives of purpose, informed citizenship, ethical leadership, and lifelong learning. That mission has never been more important. At a moment when public confidence in institutions has declined, political polarization has intensified, and the value of higher education is increasingly questioned, our responsibility is not only to defend higher education, but to strengthen it by earning and sustaining the public's trust.

This year, AAC&U continued to lead that work. We launched our Advancing Public Trust in Higher Education initiative, bringing together institutional leaders, policymakers, employers, students, and the public around a simple but essential premise: trust is grounded in trustworthiness. We advanced our Call for Constructive Engagement, encouraging colleges and universities to engage thoughtfully and transparently with government officials, community partners, and the broader public. Across our conferences, institutes, research, podcasts, publications, and advocacy, we reaffirmed that excellence, equity, academic freedom, and accountability are not competing values but mutually reinforcing commitments.

We also faced extraordinary headwinds. Federal policy changes, legal challenges, reductions in research support, and increasing pressures on institutional autonomy required both principled leadership and practical action. AAC&U worked alongside our member institutions, higher education associations, and public leaders to advocate for policies that preserve educational opportunity, protect academic freedom, support international education, and sustain the research enterprise that benefits our nation and the world.

Despite these challenges, our members continued to innovate. Faculty redesigned curricula to prepare students for an AI-enabled future. Campuses expanded authentic assessment, experiential learning, civic engagement, and career-connected education. Presidents, provosts, faculty, staff, trustees, and students demonstrated extraordinary commitment to ensuring that colleges and universities remain places where difficult questions can be explored with rigor, evidence, and respect.

The accomplishments highlighted in these pages reflect the collective work of a remarkable community. They are possible because of the dedication of our members, the leadership of our Board of Directors, the generosity of our supporters and partners, and the talent and commitment of the AAC&U staff. I am deeply grateful to each of you.
